Indrew Carter Visiting Friends Her Had Narrow Escape From Death While Working in Lumber Camp-Death of Powlosky Child-Notes.

Andrew Carter who has been in Canada the past two years is now the guest of friends in Greeneville. Mr. Carter worked in a lumber camp last winter and was seriously injured when a large tree which his men were cutting down suddenly fell pinning him to the ground. Mr. Carter's head was badly injured and it was at first thought that he would die before medical assistance could reach him as the nearest town was 10 miles away. His men placed him on a small sied and he was taken to a doctor's office in the town wher his injuries were dressed. Mr. Carter was confined to his room for 12 weeks and it was sometime after that even before he had regained his former strength. He will return to Canada in a few week's but before going back will visit New York and Washington, leaving for New

Norwich certainly looks good to John
G. Steiner and his brother, Major Henry J. Steiner, who arrived at their home on Church street this week from Colorado. It is five years since Major Steiner went to Rosita to join his brother, and John Steiner has not spent a summer in Norwich for 15 years, so they are appreciating to the full the vacation of three or four weeks which they are taking.

The young men speak modestly of their achievements, while telling interesting stories of their life in a Colorado mine. By degrees their company has acquired 15 mining claims, a total of 400 acres, with a ranch of 160 acres, about 100 miles from Pueblo. They are 9,200 feet above sea level, or fully 4,000 feet higher than Denver, which is 245 miles distant.

Rich Deposits of Copper.

Their mine is principally deposits of copper also carrying gold and silver. When it is stated that the ore body is eight feet wide and 10 per cent, copper ore, it gives a good idea of the value of their big claim. At present ten men and five horses are employed in the mine.

Land Heavily Wooded.

By great good fortune their land is heavy in timber, mostly red spruce, and this has been of invaluable aid in timbering the mine. They have driven a tunnel 1,200 feet into the hill. The breast of this tunnel is 300 feet deep. A crosscut tunnel which cuts the main dike was driven 1,200 feet for this pur-persons wearing objectionable bathing attire.

Big Buster Elionsky, the long distance swimmer, was the first one to fall under the ban. Buster's jersey is cut rather low in back and some of the people at the beach thought it bordered on immodesty, so he was asked to change it for a jersey with more cloth to it, but he refused, claiming the costume perfectly proper.

Many of the bathers at the beach agreed with the big fellow. There was nothing objectionable about the costume as far as they could see. Ellonsky explained that he had the jersey cut low in the back and about the arms to give him more freedom in swimming. He said if he wore a "full grown" jersey it would hinder him in movements of the arm and that it might prevent him from working successfully in some of the near drawings in which freequently in the safe to be aching the cost of the station plaza, and music by the band.

fectly proper."

The great majority of bathers at Ocean Beach wear legitimate costumes. Occasionally a freak suit makes its appearance on the beach. In some cases there is genuine de-mand for action, in forcing the bather to don another suit or leave the beach, but in all these things there is a tenalways seeking an opportunity to complain and this is a fertile field.

In former years there have been complaints about the same thing. A few seasons ago there were many protests against one piece suits, which are used at many beaches, and the park commissioners issued an order tabooing the one-piece suit. Signs were placed on the beach informing bathers that the one piece suit is not "within the law." It is planned now to make all bathers passing from the rear of the beach to the bathing beach wear capes or covering of some sort until they are on the beach proper.

Rochester, N. Y., July 23.—Driven desperate by their inability to purchase habit-forming drugs since July I, when the new state law prohibiting their sale became effective, eight young man applied to the police yesterday and today and asked to be locked up. Several of the voluntary prisoners declared that if they were not placed in confinement they feared they would either commit murder or self destruction. "Either give us the drug or lock us up until we are cured," summed up their appeal. Baltimore. Md., July 23.—Cardinal Gibbons is 30 years old today. The nearest cities and villages are Westcliffe and Silvercliffe, about 15 miles distant. It is six miles to the nearest postoffice, at Rosits, and 15 miles to the railroad terminal. The mine owners are now building a private telephone line to connect them with Rosits, cutting the poles on their own land.

Millions of army worms which threatened the destruction of 72 acres of corn, valued at $10,600, on the Branford farms owned by Commodore Merton F. Flant, at Eastern Point, have been virtually exterminated by a force of 50 isborers, automobiles and auto trucks, under the direction of Prof. G. H. Lamson of Connecticut Agricultural college. The invasion of the pests was noted late Tuesday and Professor Lamson was notified. He arrived at the farms Wednesday morning and at once inaugurated a war of annihilation on the worms which at the time covered the ground in innumerable swarms.

Double ditches were dug, completely surrounding the great corn area. In the worst places a poisonous mash consisting of bran, parls green and molasses was strewn. The worms tackled it with avidity, and in almost less time than is required to write it. In millions of the creatures had ended their destructive careers. They laid so thickly in the ditches that they could be shoveled out like ashes from a furnace. In other sections where they were not so thick they were killed as they fell into the trenches.

So quickly was the invasion of the pests taken in hand by the farm management that little damage was done to the valuable corn crop, which when harvested is likely to be in the vicinity of 2,000 tons. The worms made their first appearance in a section of millet, where they made slight headway before being discovered. The laborers and equipment utilized in controlling the ravages of the worms were all from the Plant estate, workers and machines being transferred from other departments to combat the plague.

suffered an estimated damage of $600 from the scourge of the worms. They arrived Sunday and had been extremely busy since. Walls surrounding the property are black with them. The worms have practically destroyed a 15 acre field of oats and yesterday were attacking a ten acre grass, lot.

Wednesday he devoted the day to cutting as much of the oats as possible to prevent the worms from ruining it. He also dug a deep furrow around the corn field to head off the 'pests from that portion of the farm. Some of them had already gotten there and Mr. Brigham found some of the larvae stowed away in the ears of corn. The worms stormed the ditches and were soon at work destroying the corn. As the farm has $0 head of cattle to feed the loss of the crop is a very serious disaster.
